Are you looking for an attorney who loves to solve problems and takes the time to understand your business, your particular issues and your concerns? Then you have come to the right place. John's problem solving abilities and focus on his clients' concerns make him a trusted partner for many of his clients. Although he has extensive experience in intellectual property, contracts, business counseling and technology law, John also does not hesitate to find other resources if a client's concerns are outside of these areas.
